LOCAL MATTERS.

To those who have felt disappointed—if I have been out when you called at Goudy Bros., please do not assume me too severely as I am growing old and must take some rest during the day to prepare for my night work next week, but orders left with the boys or their lady assistants will receive prompt attention.

As usual Cyrus Miner has the largest assortment in the city of fancy shippers suitable for holiday trade. He has just received a large invoice combining many new styles of ladies', gentlemen's and boys', that are beautiful, and will be sold very cheap. Drop into his store and take a look at them.

The place for holiday goods is at the Chicago store, where the prices are so low that no trap-door inducements of a little candy need be offered to induce customers to purchase. Our reputation for selling bargains is too well known for us to resort to any sensational style of advertising.

Briefs.

—Three weeks vacation for the school children.

—No arrests were made by the police force last night.

—There are indications of an approaching snow storm.

—No criminal business in the municipal court to-day.

—Janesville dealers are well stocked with holiday goods.

—Christmas turkeys are quite plenty in the Janesville market.

—The ice in Rock river, above the upper dam, is now about twelve inches in thickness.

—Mrs. Gougar will handle the morning question this evening in her lecture at Lippin's hall.

—The school commissioners will discuss the "rules of school" at an adjourned meeting to be held this evening.

—Rev. Mr. Burr, of Beloit, will preach in the Congregational church this city, to-morrow morning and evening.

—The churches of Janesville will all be open to the public to-morrow. See the church directory in this paper.

—Our business streets were crowded with teams to-day, many people from the surrounding country being in the city doing business.

—Many thanks, friends, for these favors. Let the good work continue, "Christmas comes but once a year."

Yours truly, Goudy Bros.

—The Presbyterian church Sunday school will have their Christmas entertainment on Friday evening, December 23th, in Lippin's hall.

—The Grand Army veterans and their families will enjoy a social reunion at post headquarters this evening. The Grand Army orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing.

—The sorting and packing of tobacco at the warehouses in this city will not begin in full force until after January first, although most of the sorting rooms are in operation now with small forces.

—Mrs. John M. Bauman received word this morning by telegraph that her father was dangerously ill at his home in Merrill, Lincoln county, this state, and started on the afternoon train north for Merrill.

—Free admission at Lippin's hall this evening, and a first class lecture. Go and listen to the fair speaker and gain some new points on the use and abuse of the political ballot. Mrs. Gougar will tell all about it.

—Mr. A. W. Baldwin is still confined to his home by sickness, but the Gazette is glad to state that his condition is somewhat improved, and it joins with his numerous friends in the hope that he will soon be himself again.

—Remember the auction sale of household furniture at the residence of Mr. Fred Sorenson, on Milton avenue, at one o'clock on Monday afternoon. A good chance to secure some excellent bargains in house furnishing goods.

—A number of Janesville sportsmen took to the woods at an early hour this morning for the purpose of slaying rabbits, and as none of them have reported up to this time, we are led to believe they are having considerable sport among the brush piles.

—Edgerton Tobacco Reporter: "Fred Graves, of Edgerton, stripped 300 pounds of one grade tobacco in six hours last week." When it is known that two hundred pounds is an average day's work for good hands stripping tobacco, no one will attempt to dispute Mr. Graves' title to the champion medal.

—Our citizens who appreciate a first-class lecture, should not fail to be present at Lippin's hall this evening, and hear Mrs. Gougar speak on the subject of "Human Rights." She knows how, and will entertain her hearers, and is one of the best lady speakers ever heard in this city. The hall should be crowded. Admission free.

—Rev. Mr. Burr, of Beloit, will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church to-morrow morning and evening. On account of the cold weather the services will be held in the Sunday school room. Mr. Pierson, the janitor, is authority for the statement that the room will be comfortable if the mercury should lose itself in trying to escape from the lower end of the thermometer.

—At the conclusion of the lecture last evening, Mrs. Gougar stated that she would be pleased to meet all ladies friendly to the organization of Woman's Suffrage association at the Myers house parlors at two o'clock this afternoon, for the purpose of forming such an association in this city. We are unable to give the conclusion of the meeting in this evening's Gazette.

—The Beloit Free Press: "The aldermen composing the committee appointed to look up the matter of buying a steam fire engine have received bids from several engine manufacturers, which they are considering, and some agents have agreed to send engines here for trial. In any case it will require fully three months' time before a new engine can be secured, and during the winter some second hand engine will have to be used. The aldermen will in a short time visit Janesville and Racine to examine steamers there. The council will, without doubt, buy a steamer this winter."

—The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 7 degrees above zero. Cloudy, with southeast wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 10 degrees above zero. Cloudy with southeast wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 2 and 19 degrees above zero.

HUMAN RIGHTS.

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar's Lecture in Lippin's Hall Last Night.

But very few of our citizens were in attendance at the lecture given in Lippin's hall last evening by Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, of Indiana; but those few were amply paid for braving the keen northwest wind and low temperature, prevailing during the evening.

Mrs. Gougar is a middle-aged lady, medium size, light hair, fair complexion and very pleasing address, and appeared before the small audience last evening in rather a conversational manner, and did not attempt any show of oratory, although it was evident from her easy and graceful appearance, that had the hall been filled, she possessed the necessary qualifications to sway her audience at will.

Mrs. S. C. Gurnsey presided, and introduced the speaker. Mrs. Gougar, upon surveying the empty seats before her, humorously remarked that when she first concluded to appear before the public as a speaker, she resolved that she would not be disturbed by three things: a crying baby, a barking dog, and a small audience. She did not appear in public as an advocate of woman's rights; she did not like the words, and wished never again to see or hear them spoken. She was an advocate of human rights, and with this brief introductory she commenced her plea for the enfranchisement of her sex. It was a grand and unanswerable argument, and unlike most unanswerable arguments, she had no abuse or unkind allusions for the "conservative" elements who held opposition to her views, but with figures, facts and logic, she met their objects in a manner that carried conviction.

She held first that suffrage, in a government like this belonged to the people, and not to a class, and that "governments derived their just powers from the consent of the governed; that this was a government for, by and of the people, and could not long endure without universal suffrage. She did not like to be classed with criminals, idiots, and idiots by being excluded by law from the use of the ballot. The speaker remarked that the "world moved," and to illustrate she alluded to the rapid advances made by woman in almost all branches of industry, and claimed that a large percent of the graduates of our high schools and academies were girls, and that as a rule the girls of to-day were receiving a better education than the men, and were therefore as well if not better qualified to use the ballot.

It would be impossible to give all her points in a short newspaper article. It was an able plea for what she eloquently termed human rights, and she discussed the broad foundation principles of human government and justice, and was full of hope for the ultimate triumph of her cause. She appeared to lean very lovingly to the republican organization, as she thought that party there was hope that the leaders would take up the women's suffrage plank, and again return into power to stay, at the same time she had nothing bitter to say of any, and only objected to the prohibition movement as being without moral force, without the ballot of the women of the land.

Mrs. Gougar will lecture again this evening, in Lippin's hall, continuing the same subject. The hall will be open to the public, and no admission charged; but a collection will be taken up in behalf of the state association, by whom the lecturer is engaged. We earnestly hope the hall will be filled, as we can assure our readers that they seldom have an opportunity to listen to so able an argument from such an able and brilliant speaker. Go early and secure a good seat.

PERSONAL.

—Dr. S. A. Pond has returned home from his western trip.

—Hon. John Conroy, of Clinton, was a visitor at the Gazette office this afternoon.

—Mr. B. J. Whitton, proprietor of Troy Laundry, left this morning on a visit to his home in Illinois.

—The friends of Mr. T. J. Cairns will be interested in learning that he has sold out his business at Ida Grove, Iowa, and removed with his family to Cedar Rapids, which will be their future home. Mr. Cairns has been successful in his business and is now engaged in handling western lands.

His Shipwreck Glass Eye.

"The Squire" says the author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," wore one glass eye and a wig. The glass eye was constantly slipping out of focus, and the wig turning around sideways on his head whenever he addressed the people of the "Flat Creek District." Sad spectacle. Parker's Hair Balsam preserves and promotes the growth of the natural hair. It also restores the natural color to hair which has faded or become gray. Clean, elegant, beneficial, highly perfumed.

Emerald Grove.

—We notice Huestings has a fine display of Christmas goods. Give him a call. It is pleasant to everyone to be remembered by his friends in these days, and especially to children. Don't forget them. He also carries a full stock of everything in the way of family supplies at low prices. Willie is always at his post, and happy to see his friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Clough took their departure last week for Bloomington, Grand county, Wis., at which place, and Red Wing, Minn., they will spend a few weeks visiting relatives.

—Mrs. Mary Scott is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Ed. Imann, in Beloit.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Clough attended the meeting of the Congregational convention, held on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

—There will be a weight social at the home of Mr. James Plutz on Friday evening.

ing December 18th. The supper will be the weight of your lady divided by four, for the couple. Single persons and children their weight divided by eight. A cordial invitation is extended.

SOCIAL SOAP SUDS.

As a Factor in Social Life.

Any one acquainted with the properties of soap will admit that it is a useful article and capable of promoting cleanliness, which, as a moral virtue, occupies a prominent place in the long list which culminates in a perfect character. Soap and sociability have never been very closely connected in the minds of people who have liberally used the former, and by its use have attained an enviable reputation in the charmed circle of social life.

It is possible to be a good socialist without the aid of soap, but if you aspire to any prominence in society or expect to keep pace with the rank and file of average intelligence, the constant use of soap in one way or another, will be found necessary.

The Court Street church people, to the number of about one hundred, at their social in the first ward last evening, discussed the question of soap as a source of revenue. The discussion presented some novel features, and was participated in by young and old in a manner that indicated familiarity with the subject and ability to handle it.

The preparations were somewhat elaborate, and included a large dish of soap suds manufactured for the occasion, from a cake of ivory soap. This noted soap, which has been set to music, and tared the skill of artists in all climates, is undoubtedly reliable, but the experience of last evening demonstrates the fact that it is better adapted to producing white elephants than to the manufacture of first class soap bubbles, and the preparations were found incomplete, until an old fashioned washbasin containing a little water and a good deal of soft soap, was introduced, which completely put in the shade the ivory compound.

Refreshments were served in the dining room. A large tray of fancy pipes ornamented the center of the table, which was lined with little cups containing soap suds. Standing room was in good demand at the rate of ten cents for ten minutes, and by ten o'clock the enthusiastic blowers succeeded in blowing into the treasury of the Ladies Aid society nine dollars and sixty two cents. The odd two cents were contributed by a junior doctress of the church, for the privilege of taking a cup of the mixture home with him for practice; he hopes to be able to acquire a proficiency that will enable him to rank as a first class blower.

During the evening a number of prizes were awarded, one for the "largest blower," another for the "slowest blower," and still another for the "most graceful blower." They were neatly put up in packages, and opened in the presence of the company, and will undoubtedly be prized more as keepsakes than for their intrinsic value.

A liberal supply of popcorn and candy was scattered about the rooms, and added somewhat to the enjoyment of the little people.

Some choice music was rendered by the church choir, assisted by Dr. C. L. Clarke, with Miss Julie Wilson at the organ.

After half past ten o'clock everybody renewed their youth and the social closed with the impression that soap suds may be used to good advantage at a church social.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla marvelously braces up the system; purifies and invigorates. Every invalid needs it.
